State Excise Police present at National Conference in Nashville, TN

Last week, over 2,000 people attended the annual 3-day Underage Drinking Enforcement Training Center national leadership conference and the National Liquor Law Enforcement Conference in Nashville, TN. Among the presenters were State Excise Police Officers Jennifer Fults, Ron McDonald and Superintendent Alex Huskey. The presenters were chosen by the Enforcing Underage Drinking Laws (EUDL) division of OJJDP (Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention) and the National Liquor Law Enforcement Association (NLLEA).

Huskey, McDonald and Fults presented a 75 minute program that outlined the Survey for Alcohol Compliance that the agency launched in April 2007. Survey for Alcohol Compliance (SAC) is a process in which the Excise Police teams up with youth aged 18-20 to conduct compliance checks at alcoholic beverage establishments across the state. The statistical data collected through the compliance checks allows the Excise Police to identify problem locations and counties where enforcement efforts need to be concentrated. To date, the Excise Police have conducted over 3,400 compliance survey checks.

Other attendees from the Indiana State Excise Police included Major Robin Poindexter, Captain Greg Deitchley, Lieutenant Patrick Fulford, Officer Dawn Townley, Officer Travis Thickstun, and Officer Harrison Rich.
